PIANOS.

GAINED FIRST PREMIUM FOR GREATEST merit at the New Orleans Cotton Centennial and WORLD'S Exposition for refined and wonderful power of tone, elegance of design, and superb finish. Only piano endorsed by United States commissioners, from each of the States. Cases finest carved, rosewood finish—finest imported double repeating action—three strings throughout of best patent steel wire—keys best ivory. Our new patent steel tuning device, instead of wood, is the greatest invention ever made in pianos. It consists of stationary STEEL tuning pins that are set in a mold and molten STEEL is run round the pins keeping them solidly in place. A thimble or shell pin is made to exactly fit the stationary pin revolving therein; thus the strings wind round the pins. After the strings are properly stretched the piano can never get out of tune, the rest plank being of STEEL not affected by extremes of climate. This will be appreciated by all musicians in city or country. It will stand twenty years without tuning and is good for 100. No other piano has this improvement.

Great strength and durability is another advantage. In other pianos holes are bored in wooden boards and tuning pins inserted. The pins turn round in this board and cannot stand permanently in tune, and it often cracks, splits, dry s out, becoming utterly, totally and entirely worthless as a musical instrument. Our STEEL tuning device is in no way affected by such casualities, and the sounding board is so constructed that our pianos can never become thin or metallic in tone. They are always in tune and the expense of tunning is saved. This patent alone is worth millions and makes our piano the greatest in the world. Prices are no higher than other pianos. Buying direct from us, the largest manufacturers, you save $100 or $200—dealers' profits. Don't mind the ominous growlings of dealers and agents, who see their chances of selling a poor piano at a big profit of $200—slipping away—pity them.

We guarantee our pianos ten years. 200 styles. We have put our prices at lowest bed-rock for Cash.

A $600 Piano for $259.50 ; a $900 Piano for $297 50 ; a $1200 Piano for $375.50 ; a $1500 Piano for $475.50.

Upright Cabinet Grands, with stool and rubber cover shipped on board cars at S. F., to any part of the United States, Canada or Mexico. Our terms are cash with order. If not as represented money returned. We occassionally have good second-hand pianos, made over at $100 to $300, which we take in part payment for our own. Write or call for catalogue, free.

BABY RINGS ARE DANGEROUS.

Objections Raised by Physicians to the Dainty Little Ornaments.

Baby jewelry is largely limited to bib pins. The infantile ring is not a success, although fond mothers struggle to make it popular. A couple of years ago the fashion was started of putting a solitaire on the middle finger of every first born, and for a while the demand was excessive. Orders came from all parts of the country for the tiny jewels, and those intended for the exclusive trade of New York were boxed in dainty cases and presented to the scions of fashion at the christening. It soon became evident that the rings were proving a troublesome ornament, for not only did the diminutive patricians object to the decoration, but special attendants were needed to keep them from being swallowed.

For the first six months the average baby ignores the gold ring, but almost as soon as the shining band attracts his attention the streak of viciousness becomes apparent. Mr. Baby proceeds to gouge his eyes out and tear strips of pink and white skin from his velvety cheek with the edge that seems sharpest. The flat or ribbon band is especially adapted for this purpose, and for plowing up the soft flesh about his chin or abbreviating the corners of his nose there is nothing in the toilet basket better adapted than a twisted or Venetian gold ring.

All store rings are good for gouging purposes, and during the teething period most of the gems are swallowed. It doesn't make any difference how well the ruby or turquoise may be set, if baby takes a notion to bite, and the nurse is remiss, the stone will come out and be gulped down in a jiffy. Repeated accidents, some of them fatal, reported to the jewelers selling the rings have had the effect of reducing the manufacture of cluster and solitaire designs.

One of the largest firms on Broadway refused to carry any children's jewelry set with stones, for the reason, the manager said, "that we cannot afford to sell cheap designs, and the trade will not pay for the best." He added, laying aside a tray of tiny rings set with clusters of diamond clippings, "I never would permit a young child of mine to wear jeweled ornaments until he was old enough to appreciate their value."

An old west side specialist of children's diseases, whose book of baby patients contains as many names as the public records of a small town, considers the baby ring an idiotic species of woman's vanity.

"I am opposed to them and always have been for the reason that they shackle the child. If the mother tends to the infant there is no danger to be apprehended, but it is not safe to leave a baby and a gold ring alone with a nurse girl.

"In a convulsion I have seen children bruise and tear themselves with a ring, and I also know that ornaments of this sort often worry and distress the little ones. They may do no harm, but they can do no good, and for that reason off with the finger ring and away with the bib and shoulder pin until the nursing child is old enough to enter a complaint against the cruelty and discomfort of maternal vanity.—New York World.

The Napoleonic Blessing.

The royal autograph books at the Capitol contain the names of Napoleon during different periods of his life. When he was first elected president of the French republic he wrote his name L. N. Bonaparte, and the letter in which he announces his acceptance of the place is very moderate and full of patriotism and Republicanism. On another page a letter is pasted in. It is dated only a year later, but in it Louis Napoleon has thrown off his title of Bonaparte and signs himself simply L. Napoleon. In the next letter he drops the Louis, and comes out boldly as "Napoleon, the emperor."

Shortly after he became emperor he announced his marriage with Eugenie. This marriage took place in 1853, nearly twenty years before he lost the throne. It was a love match, and the letter written in French which Napoleon sends about it is interesting. He says that he hopes that the marriage may promote the friendship between the two countries, and he closes by recommending us to God and signing himself "Our Good Friend, Napoleon."

The book of French autographs is full of social history of the royalty of France. Louis Philippe, shortly before his ascension to the French throne, announced to the President of the United States the marriage of his son, and a short time later I find his signature appended to a letter stating that the Comte de Paris, his grandson, has been born. Louis Philippe is one of the best penmen of all the kings. His letters look more like diplomas than state correspondence—Washington Cor. New York World.

A Potato Makes a Good Pen Wiper.

"See that potato?" said the clerk in one of the large hotels, as he pointed to a huge specimen gracefully balanced on the box of toothpicks.

"Yes, sir; what of it?"

"That is my pen wiper. I find it the most improved pen wiper of the age. When a guest signs the register I take the pen and hurl its point into the potato. In an instant the pen is perfectly clean and ready for the next signer. The juice of the potato keeps the nib of the pen soft and free from dirt. After the potato gets too old it can be thrown away and replaced by another. I have tried about everything in the market, but I think nothing in the line of a pen wiper can compare with a good old potato."—Detroit Free Press.

CAVES IN NEW ZEALAND.

Some Very Interesting Facts Contained in an Official Report.

A recent report of the surveyor general of New Zealand contains an account of a visit to the Waitomo caves, in the King Country, in the North Island, a summary of which is given in The London Times. The Waitomo river, a tributary of the Waipa, which passes through these caverns, lies about eighty-five miles south of Auckland, in a straight line. The caves are about ten miles from Otorohanga railway station. The country around is undulating. A quarter of a mile before the caves are reached the Waitomo, about twenty feet in width, is seen emerging from the side of a hill under which it has flowed through limestone caverns of various sizes for about twenty chains. A light canoe can be taken along the river through the caves to within a short distance of the egress, where further progress is barred by the roof coming down to the water. At the entrance to the cavern the stream is eight feet deep. The natives have never had the courage to enter.

The entrance to the cave is 30 feet wide and 20 feet high, and is in the face of a cliff. It is beautifully arched with numerous moss and lichen covered stalactites. The visitor is taken in a canoe ninety feet from the entrances and landed on a silt covered beach. By the aid of candles, for all is now dark, he finds himself among ponderous stalactites, three feet to six feet thick, reaching from the roof, twenty feet above, to within a foot of the ground. Everywhere and over the extensive and intricate cavern are seen stalactites and stalagmites of immense size in vast numbers, with marvelous beauty of form and color. At one place the dark vault is studded with thousands of glowworms, giving it the appearance of a starlit sky. Passing down the left bank of the stream for 140 feet, over a large deposit left by floods, the stream is crossed by means of a foot bridge. From the entrance to the bridge the cavern averages 50 feet in breadth and from 20 to 30 feet in height. After crossing the bridge a sharp turn to the right is made up a steep incline for a distance of seventy feet to the foot of the ladder, which leads to a narrow passage 4 feet wide and 15 feet high, which is the entrance to the Grand cavern.

Here is the bottom of the "well"—a narrow shaft running to another series of caves above. The well is four feet across and perfectly regular, as if made by human hands, and its sides are beautifully marked with horizontal streaks formed of laminated limestone. In the grand cavern is an immense mound of materials, evidently fallen from the roof. Beyond the roof rises and forms two domes, one 50 feet high. Forty feet up is the entrance to another cavern. Beyond the dome there is a sudden fall, the roof lowering so much that the visitor has to stoop. The length of the grand cavern, at the end of which the stream is again met with, is 250 feet. It varies in width from 15 to 40 feet, and from 20 to 50 feet in height. Up to this point the color is a dull brown and light yellow, but in the upper galleries, thirty feet above, there are alabaster and Parian marblelike scenes of unsurpassed loveliness. Twenty feet above the grand gallery is the organ gallery, so called from the appearance of the great stalagmitic mass, 150 feet from its entrance, rising tier upon tier, like the front of an organ with marble pipes. From the grand gallery the main gallery above is reached by a twenty-five foot ladder, and 60 feet along it is the "well." Here it is 12 feet in diameter, with smooth sides of hard limestone, and the sound of moving water is heard below. This is 45 feet above where it was first seen. Fifty feet from the upper wall is a fairy grotto, and through an archway 30 feet in length is the banquet chamber. At the end of this chamber is the white terrace, a stalagmitic mass, rising in a series of terraces. From this the upper entrance to the caves is reached, high in a wooded cliff 60 feet above and directly over the lower entrance. The report describes other galleries and caves in the same place, but these are the principal ones.

A Diet of Lean Meat and Water.

Life and health can be sustained indefinitely on a diet of lean meat and water, according to Professor J. W. Good, of the Manitoba Medical college. The servants of the Hudson's Bay company in the Athabasca district and in the Mackenzie river region depend entirely on the natural food supply of the country, some living on meat alone and some solely on fish. Great bodily and mental vigor has been retained on such a diet for periods of twenty or thirty years, with singular freedom from constipation and indisposition of every kind. Scurvy has appeared only where salt meat has been provided for winter use.

An Ambition Gratified.

When Joseph Darby, the English jumper, set out to learn jumping he said that if he could beat any man in England he would willingly lay down and die. The day came when he was champion, yet because a man hit him with a brick he raised a row and refused to die and had his assailant sent to prison.—Detroit Free Press.

Slightly Sarcastic.

Professor (who has sent the servant girl after a light, and who was slow in bringing it)—Katie, light travels at the rate of 100,000 miles a second. Where did you go to get that light?—Exchange.

CUCKOO FOLK LORE.

Curious Ideas, Beliefs and Facts About the Strange Bird.

He must be a well read man who can exhaust the subject of cuckoo folk lore. No bird is so much noticed by rustics and round no other bird have so many curious fancies crystallized. Like the goose, several familiar plants are named from it and when it has once arrived it must eat three meals of cherries, according to the folk lore, before it ceases its song, while—

The first cock o' hay
Frights the cuckoo away.

And then (after St. John's day) he turns into a hawk. Almost every gamekeeper at the present day shoots cuckoos in consequence of this belief, although he could not well spare them, inasmuch as the cuckoo "sucks little birds' eggs to make her voice clear." In Yorkshire this bird influences agriculture:

When cuckoo calls on the barel horn
Sell your cow and buy your corn.

Woe betide you if you do not turn the money in your pocket on first hearing the bird! If you have plenty of coins at that time endless good fortune will follow you throughout the year, and any wish within reasonable limits will then be granted. Here is another farmers' proverb, the interpretation of which is self evident:

Cuckoo oats and woodcock hay
Make a farmer run away.

Not only does the cuckoo prognosticate length of life, but what is still more interesting it is able to tell maidens how many years they will remain unmarried. A pretty Bohemian superstition accounts for the fact of the cuckoo building no nest, but laying her own egg in that of a linnet or hedge sparrow. On the feast of the Annunciation, it seems, old custom prescribed that birds should leave off building their nests; the cuckoo was an exception, and worked as usual. It was therefore cursed and deprived of a husband. Some may be glad to know that they can insure themselves against lumbago the rest of the year by rolling over and over in the grass the first time the cuckoo is heard. Its note is proverbially monotonous, and the Scotch have a saying, "Ye're like the cuckoo, ye hae but one song." Its depositing its egg in a strange nest and leaving it there to be hatched is the origin of Shakespeare's rather forced jokes on its name—"A word of fear, unpleasant to, a husband's ear."

In the ancient system of medicine the cuckoo was a bird of much value. The body of a cuckoo, for instance, next the body in a hareskin caused sleep. These are samples of the genius for the marvelous which so dominated men's minds in the Middle ages, and which still remains in out of the way districts. The strange habits of the cuckoo tended to the formation of these myths, and nothing could be too wild or extravagant to father on so curious a bird.

And yet the facts of the cuckoo's life and economy are so curious that no inventive powers are required to heighten the bird's attractiveness. It is supposed that the males considerably outnumber the females, and that the latter do not sing. The cuckoo is a parasitical bird, leaving its eggs to be hatched and its young to be reared by foster parents. Two birds, belonging respectively to North and South America, somewhat akin to our starling (Molothrus pecoris and M. niger) possess analagous habits, and with the cuckoos are the only birds which fasten, as it were, on another bird, upon whose food they live and whose death would involve theirs during the period of infancy.

Another fact has been discovered in regard to this. It is found that the female cuckoo lays her egg, not in the nest which she selects, but on the ground — sometimes close, at other times some little distance from the nest—and then transports it in her bill to the nest where she desires to leave it. Professor Newton remarks that cuckoos have occasionally been shot while thus carrying their eggs, and thinks, with much show of reason, that this custom has probably given rise to the belief that they suck the eggs of other birds; to which we would add the corroborative fact that they are continually mobbed by other birds as if they were mischievous robbers. The egg, as most school boys know, is very variable in color.

When it is hatched the young cuckoo speedily thrusts out its foster parents' eggs, and even any young ones, shouldering them, as it were, on its back, as Jenner (who actually saw the process) describes it, and then throwing them out of the nest with a jerk. Most residents in the country must have noticed the ungainly looking young cuckoo after it has flown from the nest, resting on the lawn or on a tree in a helpless, begging attitude, noisily calling for food, which is always faithfully supplied by its foster mother, even when herself but a little water wagtail. This contrast between the pair in size and independence is ludicrous and striking. After some time the young cuckoo follows its kind to the south, the old ones always going first.—Cor. St. James Budget.

Rather Embarrassing.

"Know that young lady at the piano, Mr. Blunt?"

"Yes, I am slightly acquainted with her."

"Well, I wish I was."

"Why?"

"I'd cultivate her until I knew her well enough to tell her she can't sing. Her voice reminds me of the cry of a fish hawker. Can't you introduce me?"

"With pleasure. I am her father."—New York Ledger.

Truth Crushed to Earth.

That was a laughable joke on the young couple who were out walking a Sunday or two ago, wheeling their first-born in a baby carriage. They noticed the people smile as they passed by and wondered what was the matter. The wife finally said: "I'll walk ahead a little ways and you see if anything is wrong with my dress." Nothing to smile at there, and the husband called her back and said: "Now let me walk ahead and you see if my pants are "busted," and he walked on wheeling the baby before him. A little laugh brought the husband to a sudden halt before he had gone twenty feet, and he blushed all over as his wife pointed to a trademark on the back of the baby buggy. It read: "Our own make." They had forgotten to tear it off when the buggy was unpacked.—Elko Press.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleuse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

McGINTY.

He Again Bobs Up from the Bottom of the Sea

And Takes in Sonoma Valley on the Fourth.

MY DEAR GRANICE:

I am in a world of trouble again. I recently made application for a certificate to become a school-ma'm and failed on only one cussed word. I knew how to spell back in ould Ireland, but I don't understand the new deal that is now practiced by School Boards. Our worthy County Superintendent treated me kindly. She was willing to make a school ma'm of me, although she said I wasn't exactly of the make and build to wear a Grecian bend. The trouble arose when I was examined by the Board of School Dads, one of whom was a Teutonic gentleman, who insisted on examining me in orthography. I broke down on the first word. He said: "Please Mr. McGinty, spell Postoffice." I spelled it as taught in the ould counthry, as follows: P-o-s-t-o-f f-i-c e. Imagine my surprise when he informed me that I had failed. He said he would spell it for me. He said, "Vell, McGinty, this is the way to spell Postoffice, "Post with a big O and a couple of ff's-ice—Postoffice. Vell, you are rejected." So now I am a wanderer like Othello—without coin or occupation. Mrs. McGinty says it's good enough for me—served me just right for not asking her how to spell it.

I must now tell you how I enjoyed our grand natal day—the 17th of July or the 4th of Ireland, I have forgotten which. Well, it don't matter. I got there all the same. Mrs. McGinty and I put on our best clothes and hitched the old "hoss" to the cart and drove to Boomtown. I traded some eggs and garden sass for a few eye-openers in the dark room of the temperance hotel. This filled me brimfull of patriotism and ambition for office. By the time we reached Glen Ellen I had announced myself a candidate for four different offices. Another eye-opener at that place raised me above a township position, and I concluded to leave Johnnie Kearney a free field for Roadmaster. I was then after Johnnie Tivnen's scalp and the Coroner's office.

When I reached "Helverano" I wanted to be Mayor. Another eye-opener and Sonoma is reached. By this time nothing short of Governor would do me. Just here let me say that Mrs. McGinty knocked out all my aspirations for office by lathering me over the head with that blasted old umbrel. She said all I was fit for was to look after the little McGinty's at home (there are only eleven of them). "A nice job that," says I to Mrs. McGinty. "Yes," says she, "An' it's all yees fit for." I cooled down amazingly. There is nothing that cools a fellow's aspirations so much as for the old woman to get after him. (You know how it is yourself, Mr. Editor.)

I went in to see the Native Daughters' entertainment. Pretty soon I got mixed up all around. The ladies were so all fired pretty that I found myself trying to say pretty things to half a dozen of 'em at once. Mrs. McGinty found me, too, and she pulled me out by one ear. If you should judge my geneology by the length of that ear after the wrenching it received you would say that my race sprang from a noted animal that was rode into Jerusalem more than 1800 years ago. You would either take me for a lineal descendant of Balaam's quadruped or a Boomtown dupe after figuring up his profits on Boomtown investments. Never mind the length of my ear, geneology or anything else, for I am going to tell you what I think of the Native Daughters' celebration. It was just grand! grander! grandest! The music was good. The young ladies looked as pretty as laughing sunbeams. Bordwell was a trump. Thomas was pretty enough to embrace, provided a fellow didn't object to color. He was just perfect. Joe Hein should go to Italy and become famous. What a splendid quartette, Misses Shaw and Messrs. Thomas and McLaughlin. I envied you, Weems, my lad, you came honestly by your musical talent. God bless the little orphans, Celie and Julie. Your acting was life-like, so much so, that it touched McGinty's heart until his eyes were dimmed with tears. The lady manager was a grand success. When I am called in, I bespeak your kind services, good lady, to manage my wake. I know your management will be a success, for everybody will be there.

I had liked to forgotten the orator. He says it makes no difference because Bob Poppe and McGinty wrote the speech. The ball was one of the best ever given in Sonoma. The supper was first-class. There was enough to feed a multitude and still there was "Moore and Moore" left.

Grand old Sonoma may well feel proud of her Native Daughters, who are the fairest of the fair, but for goodness sake don't tell Mrs. McGinty I told you so, for she would murther.

JOHN GUILFOYLE.

He Serves His Five Years Sentence in San Quentin and is Re-Arrested.

John Guilfoyle, who was arrested, tried and sentenced to San Quentin several years ago for stealing horses from the Bibler ranch near this place, was released from the penitentiary on Wednesday of last week, after serving a sentence of five years. As he passed out of the prison gate he was met by his mother, who expected to accompany him home. The meeting between mother and son was very affecting. As they turned to leave, young Guilfoyle was tapped upon the shoulder by Sheriff McKenzie of Napa, who served upon him a warrant for his arrest, and he was again in the clutches of the law. This last charge upon which he was arrested was for changing the brands upon the stolen horses. Guilfoyle is now in the Napa county jail, awaiting trial. It is said that his hair has turned quite gray during his five years incarceration in prison. He is only 28 years of age.

True Merit Rewarded.

At a meeting of the Board of School Trustees of the Summit Joint School District, held July 5th, the Board adopted the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas, Miss Emily Kurtz has taught the Summit Joint School District for the last five years. Having most faithfully discharged her duty as teacher during these many years that she has been employed as teacher in our district and knowing her to be worthy and well qualified; therefore be it

Resolved, That we extend to Miss Kurtz our heartfelt thanks for her long and faithful service; and as a further appreciation of her faithful service we, in behalf of the patrons of the district, tender to her the position as teacher of the next term of school of said district commencing July 14, 1890.

Deafness Can't be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness, (caused by catarrh,) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Vallejo Estate.

The appraisers of the estate of the late Gen. M. G. Vallejo met last Monday and appraised the estate at $9675. The estate comprises 254 acres of land, improvements thereon and the Sonoma water works. The appraisers were Henry Weyl, A. J. Van Every and David Calloway.

Infernal Ingenuity.

Could scarcely devise more excruciating tortures than those of which you see the evidences in the face of a rheumatic or neuralgic sufferer. The agonies are the consequence of not checking rheumatic or neuralgic attacks at the outset. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters have been found by skillful medical practitioners to possess not only remedial, but defensive efficacy, where those diseases exist, or a tendency to them is exhibited. Surely this puissant but safe botanic medicine, bearing, too, such specific sanction, is better than the poisons often employed, but most unsafe, not only in continuance but in isolated doses. The blood is depurated thoroughly from the rheumatic virus, and the nerves, slightly impurged upon, saved from ultimate and direful throes by this benign, saving medicine, which likewise exhibits marked efficacy for malaria, kidney complaints, dyspepsia, constipation and liver complaint.

Mr. A. A. Vallejo, teacher of Spanish and music, has been quite successful with his classes in this place. Hereafter he will teach at the residence of Mrs. Gen. Vallejo every Friday and Saturday evening. Young ladies who so desire will also be taught at the same place.

Long of Bear Flag Parlor, No. 27, were present. After the installation ceremonies the members and their guests repaired to the Union Hotel and partook of an excellent repast which had been prepared for them by Mr. and Mrs. Moore.

Alf. McLaughlin had the back of his right hand severly burned last Wednesday with carbolic acid. He was opening a bottle containing the liquid when by some mischance a quantity came in contact with his hand, burning him as above described. A hasty application of olive oil was resorted to which did much to ease the pain and prevented the burning liquid from eating deeper into the flesh.

Bear Flag Lodge, No. 97, K. of P., installed its newly-elected officers last Thursday evening, the installing officer being District Deputy Geo. C. Young of Petaluma. The following were installed for the ensuing term: Joe Hein, P. C. C.; Chris. Wise, C. C.; F. A. Riser, V. C.; J. Reve, Prelate; M. A. Flynn, M. of A.; A. F. Pauli, I. G.; John Johnson, O. G. After the business of the Lodge had been concluded the members repaired to the Sonoma House, where they banqueted a number of visiting Knights from Petaluma.

C. Henry Baron of this place has recently discovered and patented a most valuable preparation for cleaning silver, steel, tin, iron, glass, porcelain and marble. As a polisher it has no equal. About two weeks ago the preparation, which he has named "Olio French Polish," was put upon the market, since which time thousands of bottles have been disposed of in San Francisco alone. No doubt this excellent polish will become a standard household article in the course of time. Should he succeed in establishing a good trade it is Mr. Baron's intention to start a factory in Sonoma, which will give employment to a number of our idle boys and girls.

THE FIRE FIEND.

He Pays Sonoma Another Visit --The Work of an Incendiary.

The Business Portion of Town Again Saved by the Firemen.

Sonoma was visited by another fire last Monday evening. Like the one which occurred less that a year ago, it was, without a doubt, the work of an incendiary.

The night was just such a one to be selected for the destruction of the town by fire. The sky was overcast with clouds which eclipsed in inky blackness all surrounding objects. A brisk breeze, too, was blowing, but, strange to relate, just as the fire was well under way a calm set in. Had the breeze which had prevailed up to 11:30 P. M., and which was a regular twister, not subsided, almost the entire business portion of the town would have been destroyed. Divine providence and the efficiency of the Sonoma Volunteer Fire Department, however, interversed and saved the town from almost total destruction. This last conflagration tested the capabilities of the firemen to successfully cope with the fire fiend.

The alarm, which was rung in by C. W. Engelbert, acting Chief, brought the firemen and almost the entire populace of Sonoma and the surrounding country within an area of four square miles to the rescue of the old town.

The fire, which was seen to burst forth in the southeast corner of Pabst's tin shop, spread with great rapidity to McMackin's grain storehouse on the east and Pioda's unoccupied store on the west. Along side the latter was the Occidental Hotel which had just been vacated by Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Moore. Within ten minutes after the tap of the fire bell two streams of water were being poured into the burning buildings.

The hose carriage reached the scene of the conflagration first, then came the engine and hook and ladder truck immediately in its wake. It was seen at a glance that the Occidental Hotel, Pabst's tin shop, Pioda's store and McMackin's grain store house were doomed, and the entire energies of the firemen and citizens were devoted to preventing the spread of the flames to a large two-story steam feed mill on the east, Grothaus' saloon on the west and Dubring's store on the north. Had either of the above buildings succumbed to the fire a general conflagration would have followed. By almost superhuman efforts the fire was fought back and kept within bounds.

Valuable aid was rendered the firemen by farmers residing from one to four miles out of town, who heard the clanging of the fire-bell and hastened to the rescue. Many of these were veteran firemen, and one was heard to remark that he had worked at many a fire and never yet saw one handled any better. This was the general opinion of everyone.

The buildings destroyed were the property of James McMackin, whose loss will foot up about $3,000. He had no insurance on the property. Geo. Pabst, the tinsmith, had an insurance of $900 in the North British Mercantile Insurance Company.

Rabbits vs. "Bears."

A party composed of Alf. McLaughlin, Fred Ehrlich Jr., Jas. Church, Wm. Church and the INDEX-TRIBUNE man, repaired to the Bihler and Meacham ranches last Saturday for a day's sport with horses and hounds. The dogs that accompanied the party were a whole menagerie in themselves. There were five greyhounds, two setter dogs, a pointer and a Scotch spaniel. The hills and valleys from Poppe's ranch to Sears' Point were carefully hunted over, with the result that only two rabbits were scared up. One of these was captured by McLaughlin's Nelly and the other by Flynn's Mac. The sport was very exhilerating even though the rabbits were scarce. On the return several "bears" were taken on the Poppe ranch and Embarcadero.

Death of Mrs. Catherine Lewis.

As we go to press the death of Mrs. Catherine Lewis is announced. She expired at her home, after a nine-weeks' illness at 2:05 P. M., yesterday. The deceased lady was a pioneer resident of Sonoma, having settled in this place with her husband, the late John Lewis, in 1846. Mrs. Lewis leaves two sons and two daughters, Geo. W. Lewis, of Santa Rosa and Joe Lewis, Mrs. Maria Tate and Mrs. Jas. Albertson of this place. The immediate cause of her death was cancer. She was aged 69 years and 7 months. The funeral of deceased will take place to-morrow (Sunday) at 2 P. M., from her late residence.

Kicked by Horses.

On the glorious Fourth, at Anton Keyser's farm, Embarcadero, Wm. Rohr, an employee, was severely kicked by a horse on the thigh. By an odd coincidence, last Monday, at Nick Keyser's place, a laborer named Anton Smith received a kick from a horse over the region of the stomach. Both men are recovering rapidly.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

The Native Daughters' Entertainment and Social

Brings Out One of the Largest Gatherings Ever Congregated in Union Hall.

Notwithstanding there were some half-dozen private and public picnics in the valley on the Fourth and a display of fireworks on the Maxwell place in the evening, the entertainment and hop given under the auspices of Juanita Parlor, No. 20, N. D. G. W., brought out one of the largest crowds that ever congregated in Union Hall.

Glen Ellen and South Los Guilicos, never backward in helping out their sister town on occasions like the above, out-did all previous efforts in that direction and turned out en masse, and entered into the pleasures of the evening with that genuine enjoyment for which they are noted. Shellville, too, was there, while every section was represented by the flower of the youth of Sonoma Valley.

The event of the evening was an address by Hon. J. K. Luttrell of South Los Guilicos, one of the most popular gentlemen in Sonoma Valley, as was evidenced by the large gathering from his neighborhood, and elsewhere. His address, which was a masterly effort, was delivered extemporaneously and without notes. The gentleman, upon being introduced to the audience by Mrs. Kate Granice, Past President of Juanita Parlor, was received with rounds of applause. His remarks, which created great enthusiasm at times, were principally devoted to extolling the virtues, bravery and honesty of woman. As a member of the Upper and Lower House of our State Legislature, a member of Congress and a gentleman who has been honored with many positions of public trust, he found that wherever ladies were employed as clerks that they were without exception honest, capable and attentive to their duties. In speaking of the bravery of woman he narrated an incident which occurred only a short time ago in the mountains of Siskiyou county. A man, whom he had known for thirty years, with his wife and 11-year-old son, were living on a mountain ranch in that wild region. One day, the boy while playing a short distance from the cabin, was heard to scream. The father rushed to the door, and discovered his son being torn to pieces by two ferocious panthers. He stood rooted to the spot and was so paralyzed at the sight which met his gaze that he was incapable of doing anything. Not so the mother. With a mother's bravery and devotion she rushed to the rescue of her child. She seized the boy while yet in the clutches of the terrible claws of the animals, and after a short struggle succeeded in driving them off and rescuing her boy, who had ceased to breathe. Mr. Luttrell's address from beginning to end was listened to with marked attention, and at its conclusion he received a perfect ovation.

Then followed a quartette which was ably rendered by Misses Shaw and Messrs. W. E. Thomas and Alf. McLaughlin. "The Two Orphans," by Celie and Julie Granice, was a pathetic piece of acting and brought tears to the eyes of many a strong man in the audience. The harmonica solo by Master Frank Weems, the recitation by Walter Bordwell and the vocal solo rendered by Joe Hein, did much to add to the evening's enjoyment, as was evidenced by the applause accorded them. One of the most laughable numbers on the programme was a comic song in costume by W. E. Thomas, entitled "Bloodgood's Grecian Bend." This brought the house down and won for him a rousing encore. Mr. Thomas is an amateur artist of great versatility and ability and is a whole show in himself. Wm. Keating of Oakland also appeared in costume and rendered a most laughable comic Irish song, which won for him a recall and vociferous applause. The numbers on the programme were interspersed with beautiful tableaux and musical selections by the orchestra.

As the curtain went down on the last number the floors was cleared for dancing and in fifteen minutes thereafter nearly one hundred couple were whirling in the giddy mazes of the waltz. An excellent supper was served by Mr. and Mrs. Moore of the Union at 12 o'clock, when dancing was renewed and kept up until nearly four o'clock in the morning, nearly fifty couple participating in the last Lancers on the dancing programme.

During the course of the evening, H. L. Luttrell, son of J. K. Luttrell, was called upon for a speech. The young gentleman was taken completely by surprise, but was equal to the occasion and made the following extemporaneous remarks: "Ladies and gentlemen and Native Daughters: I did not come down here to make a speech this evening, but to have a good time, for when the good people of Sonoma give an entertainment or ball every one knows it will be a success and a good time is in store for those who attend. But as you have called on me for a few remarks, I will say that I am glad that so many Native Daughters have joined the order. Every Native Daughter should join the order and help to swell its ranks for there is no greater honor than to be known as a Native Daughter. A daughter of that noble band of pioneers who braved the privations, hardships, trials and savage foes in exploring the great West, and with strong arms and brave hearts have built up an empire—the brighest star in the galaxy of States. God bless that noble band of pioneers, may their pathway be strewn with most precious flowers. And you must not forget your mothers (God bless them), who shared the privations and hardships side by side with your fathers, and like the Spartan mothers of old have carved a name high up in the niche of fame and surrounded it with a halo of glory that shines as bright as the noon-day sun on the pages of history. Native Daughters, your every act should be one that will reflect credit and honor on your parents. Your every act should be one worthy the daughter of a pioneer. Your every act should be one that will show to the world that you are worthy to be entrusted with the rich boon bequeathed you by your fathers. Good night.

Good people of Sonoma, give us another one, as we never tire of going to your town for we know we will have a good time.

Mr. Editor, did you ever know that McGinty prayed? Well, he did last Tuesday. He was driving down a steep mountain grade near here when he stopped to shoot a bird. The firing of the gun frightened the horse and the animal started down the grade at a terrific speed with the lines dangling on the ground. McGinty, who had not taken the precaution to alight from his go-cart, dropped to his knees and seized the horse by the tail and vainly endeavored to stop the frightened animal by pulling on the same, the meanwhile indulging in prayer. I will not quote the prayer, as McGinty might object.

R. D. Moore of the Union is the luckiest man in Sonoma. He moved out of the Occidental just in time, else he would have been burned out. Mr. Moore, please accept the congratulations, on your good fortune, of

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, JULY 12, 1890.

The Child and the Dog.

In the stable of a famous sportsman in New York there is an inclosure where a bulldog is kept a prisoner. The dog has won thirty or forty battles and is so fierce that everybody except the man who handles him in his fights keeps at a distance from the brute. Very often lovers of dogs make a visit to the stable to have a look at the canine pugilist, but they are exceedingly shy in approaching him. One morning the owner of the dog went to the stable about half past 8 o'clock, and as the coachman had gone with the horses to the blacksmith's he let himself in with a pass key and went over to have a look at his prize dog.

When he arrived at the pen he was astounded and startled to see the 4-year-old daughter of the coachman sitting on the dog's side and cheerfully pounding the animal in the face with an iron bolt. The dog lay there with his enormous jaws open, his tongue hanging out and his face transfixed by a look of doglike faith and devotion to the infant. The little girl pulled his ears, pounded his head, stuck her fingers in his mouth, and after she had got through playing with him went off to another part of the stable, while the bulldog whined a plaintive appeal to her to come back and see him again. It turned out that this went on every day, and that, too, with the knowledge of the child's father. "I never knew a dorg to hurt a little kid like that," the coachman remarked sententiously. "They ain't built that way."—New York Sun.

Lovers, Avoid the Rocking Chair.

As an awful warning to young men to be mindful of this and shun the artful seductions of the rocking chair on certain solemn occasions of their lives we are drawn to relate the following o'er true tale of how a young man once wrecked his matrimonial hopes in yielding to the cozy suggestions of this American institution. For long years he had wooed a certain rather cold and inaccessible young woman, and seemed at last just on the edge of success. All the interested friends were waiting to be asked for congratulations, when suddenly the young man made a hasty and significant departure for the far west.

When inquiries were made of the young woman she explained that on the eventful evening when John had come for the decisive word she had entered the room fully determined to make him the happiest man this side heaven. As was fitting the occasion, she felt very solemn and unsettled. But there sat John as she came in, comfortably installed in the biggest rocking chair in the room, and swinging himself easily back and forth as if his soul were at its supremest ease. "Do you think for a moment I could believe in the love of a man," she concluded tragically, "who could sit and rock himself in a rocking chair while waiting for an answer from the woman he professed to love?"—New York Evening Sun.

A New Smoke Preventer.

A new kind of mechanism for preventing smoke has been tried under boilers with satisfactory results, the principle being in this case, as in others, the supplying of the furnace with the proper amount of air at the proper spot. The apparatus consists of a cast iron cylinder, six inches in diameter, extending horizontally clear across the fire box, about six inches above the grate bars and immediately in front of and below the boilers; in the cylinder are two rows of apertures, about three inches long and half an inch wide, the cylinder itself being divided in the middle by a solid partition. At each end of this arrangement is an opening through the wall of the fire box into which a steam jet forces air from without, and the air, playing on the bed of coals, through the slits in the cylinder, induces an almost perfect combustion, consuming all the volatile gases and carbon which ordinarily escape in the form of smoke.—New York Telegram.

A Spotted Man.

Admiral William Hunsaker, of Anna, Ills., who has returned from Pulaski, in Pulaski county, reports that a colored farmer who has lived in that vicinity for years is turning white. The first indication of the change was the appearance of white spots on his face. These have grown until some of them are as large as a silver dollar, and they are still getting bigger. As the rest of the man's face is a coal black color these white spots give him an odd, piebald appearance. His health is not affected by the color of his skin, and he is entirely unconcerned about it.—Exchange.

Studying Eel Nature.

Patrick Burke, of East Taunton, is under contract to furnish lamprey eels from Taunton river for a young lady who is gathering the spawn for the purpose of raising and studying the nature of the fish. She is working on the theory that this eel, instead of being a distinct species, as most people suppose, is only the female of the common edible eel, and her experiments will be directed accordingly. Her backers are a firm located on the Cape.—Taunton News.

the result is a collision, whether "coming thro' the rye," or not. Life is full of collisions. We are constantly colliding with someone or something. If it isn't with our body or something. If it isn't with our neighbors it is with some dread diseases that "knocks us off the track" and perhaps disables us for life. Women especially it seems, have to bear the brunt of more collisions and afflictions than mankind. In all cases of nervousness, bearing-down sensations, tenderness, periodical pains, sick headache, congestion, inflammation, or ulceration and all "female irregularities" and "weaknesses," Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to the rescue of women as no other medicine does.
